

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Vehicles equipped with air brake systems and onboard vehicle management computers may be programmed to determine normal operating variables for the air compressor system used for maintaining air brake system pressure. The algorithm used determines normal compressor cut-in and cut-out pressures and actual rise times from cut-in to cut-out by compensating for periods of exogenous air pressure demand.